MEMORANDUM FOR THE HONORABLE WILLIAM J. CASEY
The Director of Central Intelligence

SUBJECT: Economic Sanctions

There is serious controversy inside and outside of the government as to the efficacy of economic sanctions as an instrument of foreign policy in situations short of war. The recent Census Bureau study has added fuel to the argument.

It would be useful for the CIA to undertake a broad historical/conceptual study of the use of economic sanctions and their effect in a variety of political settings.

FOR THE PRESIDENT:

William P. Clark
